LAWRENCE LEACH OF SALEM, MASS.,
AND SOME OF HIS DESCENDANTS

By F. PHELPS LEACH, of East Highgate, Vt.

In 1924 I published Lawrence Leach of Salem, Mass., and five generations of his descendants in Vol. I, and in the New York Genealogical and Biographical Record of January, 1925, on page 96, I find the following paragraph:

"Lawrence Leach of Salem, Mass., and Some of His Descendants, by F. Phelps Leach, 1924. Volume I. Octavo, cloth, pp. 61 (no index). Price $6.00. Address author, East Highgate, Vt. This excellent standardized genealogical essay carries the record of the immigrant ancestor and that of his descendants to the 5th generation, inclusive. Volume II of the work is ready for the press and will bring the record down to the present time. The work is well done and reflects great credit upon the compiler. The absence of a name index renders reference somewhat difficult, but it is to be presumed that the name index will appear as a proper termination of Volume II, in the near future".

The name index will be found in this Volume III. Volume II contains the 6th, 7th and 8th generations, and in some lines the 9th, 10th and 11th. I published it to assist all who have kindly aided me by their suggestions and records, to bring their record down to the present time in this volume.

The preparation of the three volumes has been attended with no ordinary degree of perplexity and toil, on account of the imperfect and disordered condition of the records, and the necessity of resorting to various other sources for information. In some of the records which have been consulted, discrepancies have been found, but special pains have been taken to correct every error; and the hope is indulged that the facts here embodied will be both interesting and useful, not only to the present generation, but also to those who shall come after them.

He married at Salem, 30 July, 1866, Caroline Elizabeth<sup>5</sup> Roberts, born at Salem, 8 Dec. 1835; died 18 Feb. 1896, daughter of Capt. Nehemiah,<sup>4</sup> born in Hamilton in 1800; sea captain; died off the coast of Africa, in 1840; married in March, 1833, Hannah Ward (Osborne), born in 1808; died in 1888; son of Samuel,<sup>3</sup> born 1768; died 1835; married 1797, Martha (Stone), born 1774; died 1845; son of Joseph,<sup>2</sup> and Mercy (Clark), who married in 1760; son of David<sup>1</sup> Roberts, born 1704; died 1792; married in 1729; Elizabeth (Brown), at Gloucester and moved to Hamilton.

Hon. Henry C. Leach was in St. Louis, Mo., from 1855 to 1861, spending the summers of 1856 and 57 in Kansas, and aiding in the early contest in that Territory for free soil. He was active at the outbreak of the Rebellion as a member of a military organization the object of which was to hold Missouri in the Union. In 1863 Mr. Leach removed to Colorado, and went into business at Denver. He was elected to the Territorial Council in 1865, serving two years, and was President of that body. This was before the days of the Pacific Railroad, and Colorado was separated from the East by 600 miles of trackless plains. To the North was an unexplored wilderness, inhabited by Indian tribes with whom the pioneers were compelled to carry on a harassing border warfare. In 1865, a Constitution was adopted at an irregular election, which was obnoxious to a majority of the citizens. Mr. Leach and Col. Samuel Tappan, spent the winter in Washington, and succeeded by enlisting the interest of Charles Sumner and others in securing the rejection of the Bill for the admission of Colorado. The times was one of intense political excitement, not unmingled with personal peril, at times, to the actors. Mob law was often in the ascendant, and "Judge Lynch" frequently held court. Things were in a nebulous state, "slow rounding into form". Since Mr. Leach returned East, he has been in business in Boston, having his home in Salem. For a few years past, he has made his summer residence at Manchester, at the old homestead on the "Plain."

He married 29 Sept. 1831, Mary Jane Parsons, born 11 Aug. 1808, at Manchester, Mass., daughter of Tyler and Jane (Foster).

"Capt. Leach was bred to the ocean from boyhood. His father intending to make him a first class sailor the discipline of ship-board was never relaxed in his favor. In 1832, he became Captain of the brig "Oregon," and made successful voyages for many years to Russia, China, and many other ports. For fifty-one years, his home was on the ocean wave. He had many adventures and some marvellous escapes. These he was fond of recounting to sympathetic hearers, and could tell a story with a good deal of humor. One of his thrilling experiences is narrated in substance as follows: On one of his East Indian voyages, Capt. Leach sighted one day a suspicious craft, which proved to be a proa, crowded with bloodthirsty Malays; the pirates with their sweeps soon overhauled him, but when almost within range seeing the warlike appearance of the ship with its mounted cannon and crew armed with cutlasses, prudently hauled off and left the brave Yankee skipper to pursue his homeward voyage in peace."

His last active service was as Port Warden of Boston, an office which he held for twelve years, until failing health compelled his retirement. Captain Leach was a vigorous, self-reliant, self-made man, of cheerful temperament and kindly disposition. Few men better fitted for the position ever trod the quarter-deck, or in their own community received more universally the respect of their fellow-citizens. He died, in the house in which he was born.

He built a grist mill on the site of the old Bennett mill property, introducing all the improvements known; adjoining the mill, he built a wharf, ware-houses, and flakes for drying fish. He gained the reputation of curing fish better than most of his competitors and thus established a large business. With his brother he built a schooner of one hundred tons, for the Grand Banks fisheries. Mr. Foster was much interested in military affairs, and was Major of the militia in 1812. He represented the town in the Legislature in 1810 and 1836. His residence, built in 1804, remains as an excellent specimen of the architecture of the early part of the century; it was known for many years as the summer home of his grandson, George C. Leach of Boston."

"Dr. Ezekiel W. Leach was carefully prepared for college, and entered Amherst, in 1824; graduated 27 Aug. 1828; studied medicine in Boston, with Dr. Reynolds, Story, and Shattuck, and began practice in medicine at Manchester. In 1829 he delivered the 4th of July oration at Manchester. In 1830 delivered a course of lectures on the French Revolution. In 1831, health failing him, he made a voyage at sea and up the Mediterranean for his health. In 1835 he removed to Boston, taking his degree that year, and there entered upon the practice of his profession. In 1836 he united with the Baldwin Place Baptist Church, during the ministry of the eminent Baron Stow; was elected Corresponding Secretary of the Young Men's Educational Society, and President of Young Men's Tract Society of Boston. In 1837 he was chosen Director of New England Sabbath School Society; delivered several lectures before the Young Men's Tract Society, and two historical lectures before Northern Debating Society, and during that year established with several eminent physicians of Boston, The North Boston Medical School. In 1838 elected a member of the Boston School Committee, and in 1839-40-41, to the Massachusetts Legislature, as a Representative from one of the Boston Districts, in which capacity he served with distinction." "Dr. Leach was never a man of robust health, and a change to a milder climate being deemed advisable, he went South and afterwards took passage from Savannah to Havre, dying on the passage, at the age of thirty-three. He was a scholarly gentleman, an educated and successful worker in his profession; and a man universally respected and loved. For many years Dr. Leach interested himself in the history of his native town, and left at his death a large collection of materials, in manuscript, which is deposited in the Library of the Massachusetts Historical Society."

She married first 23 Mar. 1833, Merrill White, who died 1837; a clock manufacturer; secondly, 1838, Henry White, Jr., born 21 Dec. 1803.

One son by first marriage born in Bristol, Conn. (surname White):

- i. George Merrill,<sup>9</sup> b. 6 Dec. 1837; d. 23 Dec. 1891, in New Haven, Conn.; m. .... 1873, Emma Pond of Foxboro, Mass.; writer of music, who played both the piano and the guitar delightfully; daughter of

Col. George Merrill White, assistant adjutant general, journalist, author and poet, was one of the students sent from Russell's school as drill masters to the First regiment in 1861. Two hours before the First was to embark for Washington Col. Dan Tyler offered White a second lieutenant's commission which after a hasty consultation with Gen. Russell he accepted and the next day embarked with the Second regiment and on joining the First was assigned to Company C. where he served as a second lieutenant until the muster out of the regiment. After this he again returned to the school and there remained as adjutant until the call for troops in 1862 when he left his class, which was then about to enter college, and opened a recruiting office, raised a company for the "Lyon Regiment" and entered the service again as captain of Company E, 15th Connecticut Volunteers. In 1864, Gov. Buckingham gave him a commission as colonel of the Tenth Connecticut Volunteers, but as the regiment had to be recruited, he declined a detail on the recruiting service and returned to his position with the Fifteenth. When Gen. Cox was moved up from New Berne to meet Sherman at Goldsboro, Col. White, then a captain, was taken prisoner, escaped and recaptured and taken to Libby prison and while there was stricken with typhoid fever. When his regiment was paroled, however, his comrades carried him along with them and when he came to himself again it was in the naval school hospital at Annapolis, after Lee had laid down his sword before Grant at Appomattox.

Returning to New Haven, he was made chief of police, which position he filled with conspicuous ability until he resigned it to become general superintendent of a gold mining company in North Carolina, where he remained for five years, when, during the Ku-Klux excitement, the mills of the company were burned. He again returned to New Haven, was made superintendent of the New Haven Water company, afterwards president and superintendent of the Connecticut Water Pipe Co., filling the latter position for three years, and serving for a similar term as superintendent of the Connecticut general hospital in the city. He then embarked in a number of schemes, and with the Diamond Match

Co., for five years. When the campaign of 1884 opened he became secretary of the republican committee in the city of New Haven, and in 1885 was appointed assistant adjutant general under Adj. Gen. Stephen R. Smith on Gov. Harrison's staff, being re-appointed to the position by Adj. Gen. Camp under Gov. Lounsbury.

As a journalist Col. White was a leader in a state where journalism is an art. For a time acting editor of the Palladium, his editorials, written then, are models of clear and fair statements of public issues. As an orator, often in demand, and never disappointing expectation; almost continually in public office, he never made an enemy. As a compiler his greatest and best efforts were given to the Catalogue of Connecticut Volunteers, the most complete of its kind ever issued.

The last four years of his life he devoted much leisure time to his poems. This little volume, published after the author's death at the request of his many friends, and dedicated by his wife to the Comrades of the Grand Army of the Republic, is its own best excuse for being. A careful reading cannot fail to impress one with the feeling that these pastime pieces of a busy public man reveal elements of originality and power that, wholly devoted to literature, would have secured a worthy name in the world of letters.

Children: (1) Emmie White, b. 1877; m. 1900.

CLIPPING FROM THE NEWS: "Following close upon the victory of the Yale schottise comes the publication of Hillhouse two-step, the composition of Miss Emmie White of Whalley avenue. A mention of Miss White's delightful little dance has already been made. Now however, the music being on the market, it is quite in order to speak of it again. Miss White comes very naturally by her musical ability. On the maternal side, Miss White counts a grand uncle, one Handel Pond, who was a teacher and composer of note in Boston. On her father's side her great-grandfather Myron Leach, of Torrington, was a "music master", a name given in the good old days to musicians of local fame. This same Mr. Leach composed several beautiful hymns that are still sung in our churches. Charles D. Blake the well known composer of the present time, is a near relative of Miss White's father, the late Col. G. M. White. He wrote the words and music of several Grand Army memorial hymns. As a tiny little girl Miss White gave evidence of her musical gifts. She was but five years old when she mastered the piano sufficiently to play accompaniments to her little songs. When seven years old she composed and wrote out a waltz that was musically correct. She was not older than that either when with Mrs. White she played a difficult Beethoven duet. Among her recent compositions, besides the Hillhouse two-step, is a lullaby of unusual sweetness, the words of which were written by Mrs. White, who is a musician. Miss White is a pupil of Professor J. L. Ensign, who says she has a soule of the true musical genius and predicts a brilliant future for her. William A. Pond & Co., of New York, have published the Hillhouse Two-Step, and it has been put on sale at all of the music shops in town." (2) Gertrude White, b. 1879; m. in 1916, She was Librarian in the New Haven Library many years. (3) Mary White, b. 1881; unmarried and is a nurse in a drug store in Boston, Mass.

RESOLUTIONS.

Adopted by Corinthian Chapter on Death of John Hammond.

A worthy companion has gone from this arthly tabernacle to the Temple not made with human hands, the veil has been drawn and Companion John Hammond has passed through to be forever more with the Supreme High Priest of heaven. We shall miss his cheering presence; we shall no more have his companionship we so much prized. Truly can we say every trust committed to his charge called forth his best exertions and the exercise of his best faculties. We shall not forget the bright example of sincere friendship so beautifully illustrated in his life. Zeal, fidelity and affection were his distinguishing characteristics. He was true to his home, true to his Chapter, true to his country. He probably sacrificed many years of his life for nobly bearing arms in his country's service, but we trust his reward will be all the more and while we mourn our loss we do not forget his family in its great bereavement and very sincerely extend to it our heartfelt sympathy.

D., Professor of Intellectual Philosophy, at Dartmouth College. After a thorough education he started to earn his own living as a physician, settling for a short time at Claremont, N. H. In 1847 he went to Beverly; his intrinsic qualities of honor and integrity, and his fresh affable manner turned all his acquaintances into friends, and made for him a reputation that the richest and proudest might envy.

Dr. Haddock early took an interest in local charities, and everything of that nature received a generous and hearty support from him. His charity was bestowed, not to "be seen of men" but among the poor and needy, of the town, and given in such a way that those benefited did not know to whom they were indebted. When the war broke out, his patriotism, and love for fellow men led him to offer his services to Surgeon Gen. Dale, and he was assigned to duty at Washington. In 1862 he was made surgeon of the 8th Regt., M. V. M. with headquarters at Newbern, N. C., where he had charge of the hospital. He was mustered out 1863; returned to Beverly, and again resumed his practice. He was many times urged to accept public office but was too devoted to his profession to do so. The only offices that he held were Trustee of the Public Library, from 1855 to 1868, and a member of the school committee, 1849-1855. He held the position of medical examiner for the district, and also that of pension examiner at the time of his death. Children: 1. Dr. Charles Whitney Haddock, b. 3 June, 1856; 2. B. degree in 1893. He was a member of Gamma Phi Chapter of D. K. E. From the time of his graduation until May, 1894, he was city editor of the Middletown, Ct., "Herald". Then he went on the Hartford "Post", and afterwards served faithfully as a reporter and telegraph editor.

He died at the hospital after a two weeks illness from typhoid fever. Even though it was known that the disease had reduced him to death's door the news of the end was a severe shock to the hundreds of friends that the routine of a newspaper man's life gathered around him. About six hours before his death the delirium that had clouded his brain for a week lifted, and when his mother arrived at the hospital two hours later he was able to recognize her for the first time after she arrived in Hartford. Mr. Leach was taken ill two weeks previous to his death, but his health had been in poor condition for some time. His family in Buckport, Me., was notified and his mother arrived soon after. The stage of fever that rendered him delirious made the ordeal unusually trying for the mother, but she bore up bravely. While Mr. Leach was at the hospital his friends and business associates were eager to do all they could to alleviate his pain and to restore him to their midst, but the form of his malady precluded any assistance. The funeral was held at the residence of Alfred W. Green, No. 161 Seymour St., at 2.30 P. M., 24 Nov., Rev. Dr. E. L. Thorpe officiating and the press club of Hartford furnishing bearers. The body was taken to Buckport, Me., for interment.

587. HON. DE WITT CLINTON<sup>s</sup> LEACH (Jeshurun,<sup>7</sup> Samuel,<sup>6</sup> Samuel,<sup>5</sup> Samuel,<sup>4</sup> Samuel,<sup>3</sup> Giles,<sup>2</sup> Lawrence<sup>1</sup>), born in Lancaster, Erie Co., N. Y., 23 Nov. 1822; died 21 Dec. 1909, in Springfield, Mo. He married at Birmingham, Oakland Co., Mich., 17 Apr. 1850, Abigail P. Comfort, born in Southport, N. Y., 16 Dec. 1829; died 19 Jan. 1918, daughter of Thomas and Sarah (Odell).

When Mr. Leach was but two or three years old his parents removed to the then wild territory of Michigan; on the steamer which was the second to navigate the waters of Lake Erie. Gov. De Witt Clinton of New York, was a passenger bound for Cleveland, to break ground for the Ohio canal. Finding that the little child playing on the deck, was a namesake of his, he made him a small present. This was the first thing in Mr. Leach's life, the remembrance of which he carried with him to old age. The next thing in life that he remembered, sitting on the sunny side of the log cabin in which the family resided and shaking with the ague, was not so pleasant.

After a two years residence in Michigan, the family returned to the old home near Buffalo, N. Y. A few years later, another removal, to Ohio, took place and so the family continued to vibrate, as it were, between Ohio and Michigan until Mr. Leach had grown to manhood, when he was employed as a school teacher in a rural district. His opportunities for education were limited, but from childhood up, he loved books and much time was spent in reading and study, which most boys would have devoted to "having a good time."

As a teacher, Mr. Leach seems to have given general satisfaction to his employers and his services were in demand. Wages in those days were very low and the teacher who received from twelve to fifteen dollars per month was considered well paid for his labors.

In politics Mr. Leach was anti-slavery. His first vote for President was given for James G. Birney the "Liberty Party" candidate. In the autumn of 1849 he was elected a member of the lower house of the Michigan Legislature from Genesee county on a union ticket supported by Whigs and Liberty Party men.

In the spring of 1850 he was elected by the same parties as member of a convention to revise the Constitution of the State. Mr. Leach's principal speech in the convention was in favor of extending the right of suffrage to colored men, a measure quite unpopular at that time and which received but a small number of votes in the convention.

In 1854 Kinsley S. Bingham, the first Republican Governor of Michigan appointed Mr. Leach State Librarian and he removed to Lansing. He held the office for the legal term of two years. He also served as private secretary to the governor and performed some work in the Auditor General's office and for the Board of State Auditors. In the spring of 1855 a Republican paper was established at Lansing and Mr. Leach and Rufus Hosmer were appointed editors. As Mr. Hosmer resided in Detroit the difficult and responsible duties of managing the paper devolved almost entirely upon Mr. Leach.

Political excitement ran high in those days. Mr. Leach was in the prime and vigor of early manhood, enthusiastic in the advocacy of his party and its principles and made it lively for his opponents. So formal an impression did his course make upon his party, that in the autumn of 1856 he received the nomination for Congress from the fourth district.

At that time Michigan had but four representatives in Congress, the fourth district being more sparsely settled than the others, covered an area embracing nearly one half the Lower Peninsula and the entire Upper Peninsula of Michigan. Two years before, the district gave the Democratic candidate nearly two thousand majority. Mr. Leach made a vigorous canvass, and being greatly favored by the numerous political changes, then so common in all the Northwestern States, succeeded in completely revolutionizing the district and was elected by 3,500 majority. In 1858 he was re-elected thus serving four years in Congress, they were the four years, immediately proceeding the rebellion, and it may well be believed that the time was one of unusual interest and excitement.

Probably no consecutive four years of Congressional history was crowded with more important events, or witnessed so many scenes of intense and thrilling interest. The country was on the eve of the great civil war and the events immediately proceeding the outbreak of hostilities gave an earnestness and too often a bitterness to political contests, never before witnessed in this country.

Party spirit, in Congress and among the people, in all parts of the country rose to fever heat and violent collisions in the House of Representatives occurred a number of times during Mr. Leach's term of service. Mr. Leach was not what would be termed a "prominent" member. Naturally of a retiring disposition he did not push himself forward but he was prompt in his attendance and faithful in the discharge of his official duties.

He was not a "talking" member, yet he made several speeches which were widely published and gave entire satisfaction to the people of his political faith. He was not a candidate for a third term, and after listening to Mr. Lincoln's first inaugural address bade farewell to congressional life, and returned to his Michigan home.

He was soon called into the public service again, the President on the unanimous recommendation of the congressional delegation, appointing him Indian agent for Michigan. He served in that capacity four years and then of his own choice, returned to private life leaving a record of integrity and honest dealing in an office where there were great opportunities for fraud and where so many officials have yielded to the temptations around them.

In Sept. 1865 Mr. Leach removed to Traverse City, Mich., gave his attention for a year or so to building State roads and dealing to some extent in real estate. In 1867 he was elected for the second time as a member of a convention to revise the constitution of the State. In that convention he was chairman of the committee on Finance and Taxation, one of the most important in that body.

After returning from the convention he purchased of Lieut. Gov. Morgan Bates the "Grand Traverse Herald" a Republican newspaper, then entering its tenth year. For nine years Mr. Leach gave close and earnest personal attention to the publication of the "Herald" making it a success financially and securing for it a position and influence not often attained by papers published in small towns.

In the editorial office he felt at home, and on the whole enjoyed that work better than any other to which he gave any portion of his life. As an editor, while tolerant of the honest opinions of others he never failed to advocate what he believed to be right even though in so doing he came in conflict with personal friends and prevailing sentiment of his own party. After nine years of editorial life Mr. Leach, finding the confinement gradually undermining his health, sold the paper and soon after removed with his family to Springfield, Missouri. There he remained six years devoting himself partly to the cultivation of a few acres of ground within the city limits, and partly to the publication of a weekly paper, the "Patriot Advertiser." In 1882 his business interests demanding his attention in Michigan he returned to his old home at Traverse City. Always having a taste for rural affairs and also liking editorial work he tried the experiment of a monthly agricultural paper, the "Northwest Farmer", in connection with his brother Dr. M. L. Leach. The enterprise was not a success financially and after three years trial was abandoned. At the time of writing this history (about 35 years ago) Mr. Leach was giving his attention during the warm season of the year to a cranberry plantation which he had established at Walton, Grand Traverse County on the line of the Grand Rapids and Indiana R. R. He was quite enthusiastic in regard to the enterprise and hoped in time to have a cranberry meadow rivaling those of Mass., and New Jersey.

"Mr. Leach was educated at New Salem High School, and at Franklin Academy, Shelburne Falls, Mass. He afterwards studied theology and entered the ministry, in which he was preceded by three elder brothers, Rev. Sanford Leach, Rev. William Leach and Dr. Elbridge Gerry Leach. Failing health compelled him to seek a milder climate, and in 1840, he went to Cape May, and took up his residence at the county seat. Shortly after his arrival he was invited to take charge of the Seaville school, which position he accepted, and from that time until he became the proprietor of the "Ocean Wave" he was constantly and successfully engaged in teaching the youth of this country.

Foremost among those who were engaged in the Baptist Church of Cape Island was Mr. Leach. He was licensed to preach at Shutesbury Church, in Massachusetts, about 1838. He did not however, unite with the local church until January, 1849. For nearly half a century Mr. Leach was one of the leading members of the church, was many years clerk of the church, and one of its trustees, and for forty-three years a deacon. The congregation was frequently without a settled pastor for months at a time, on which occasions he occupied the pulpit, but always declined compensation for his ministerial work.

In the early fall of 1855 Mr. Leach purchased the "Ocean Wave", (about three months after it was founded by Colonel Johnson) the first newspaper published in the county, and published it and edited it until he sold the paper to Samuel R.

Magonagle. As editor he gained the reputation of being one of the ablest and strongest newspaper writers in the State, and by the use of his pen he was largely instrumental in advancing the social, educational, and material interests of the county. His writings were notably valuable in aiding to secure the construction of the Cape May and Millville Railroad. The late Charles B. Dungan is known to have said that, "but for Mr. Leach's earnest and able support in this connection, the building of the road would doubtless have been delayed for years."

At the outbreak of the Civil War Mr. Leach warmly espoused the cause of the Union, not only with his pen, but with voice as well. He was recognized as one of our best public speakers, and his services in this direction were frequently in demand, particularly during the war, at "war meetings." He was concise in argument, clear in diction and fervid in utterance, and his eloquence stirred his hearers to the heartiest expressions of enthusiasm.

In 1851, on the granting of the charter creating Cape May (then Cape Island) into a city, Mr. Leach was elected the first Recorder, by virtue of which office he became a member of City Council and a justice of the peace. In 1852 and 1858 he was chosen a member of City Council, and in 1872 he was again chosen Recorder of the city. In 1862 he was town superintendent of public schools, and in 1863 President Lincoln appointed him postmaster of the city, which position he held until Andrew Johnson succeeded to the Presidency, when, entertaining views antagonistic to President Johnson's "policy," Mr. Leach resigned the office.

He was a member of the County Board of Chosen Freeholders in 1863, 1864, 1865, 1867, 1868 and 1870. He was frequently urged to accept a nomination for the Assembly, as well as to the Mayoralty of Cape May, but declined these honors."

In his death Cape May lost one of its most prominent and highly-esteemed citizens, one who will long be remembered as a worthy representative of the "gentleman of the old school." The tablet erected to his memory in the Baptist Church bears this inscription:

"In Memory of"

Joseph Smallidge Leach, Esq., a descendant of the Puritans. He preached to this people many years without compensation and served in the office of deacon forty-three years.

A Successful Educator.

An Able Editor.

An Exemplary Citizen.

He honorably filled many public offices. In all life's relations he merited and won universal respect and esteem.

A quiet and peaceable life in all goodness and honesty."

Dispensary 1883; was surgeon of the steamship "City of Merida", and of the steamship "Capulet" 1884, with practical experience in yellow fever and smallpox.

In 1900 he was seeking an equally practical experience in Asiatic cholera to the end that we may prove an alleged prophylactic against this fell disorder of men. In May, 1906 he was elected President of the Minnesota State Homeopathic Society, of which he has been Secretary.

A devoted husband and kind father, a strong fighter for all that was pure and holy, good and true, his place will never be filled. Joseph Smallidge*,<sup>8</sup> Lemuel,<sup>7</sup> Ensign Lemuel,<sup>6</sup> Stephen,<sup>5</sup> John,<sup>4</sup> John,<sup>3</sup> Giles,<sup>2</sup> Lawrence<sup>1</sup>), with offices at 733 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa., was born at Cape May Court House, N. J., 27 July 1842, and died at his residence in Philadelphia 27 May 1922.

He married in Philadelphia, 5 October 1866, Elizabeth Tudor Whilldin, who died January, 1922, daughter of the late Capt. Wilmon Whilldin, Jr.

Captain Wilmon Whilldin, Sr., the first to establish steam-boat communication between Philadelphia and Cape May, was a native of Cape May County. He was born March 4, 1773, near Cape May City, on the estate possessed by his ancestors from the first settlement of the county. He was the son of Jonathan Whilldin (who is described as "gent" in old conveyances), by his wife, Hannah Crowell; grandson of James Whilldin, Esq., by his wife, Jane Hand; great grandson of Joseph Whilldin, by his wife Mary; and great great grandson of Joseph Whilldin, Esq., by his wife, Hannah. The last named Joseph was High Sheriff of the county from 1705 to 1708, and many years one of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace and of the Courts of Common Pleas. James Whilldin, Esq., the grandfather of Captain Whilldin, was commissioned a Justice of the Peace by Governor Belcher, June 7, 1753, and re-commissioned by Governor Hardy, September 24, 1762, and by Governor Franklin, August 21, 1767. On the two last occasions he was also commissioned a justice of the quorum. He was also commissioned Justice of the Court of Oyer and Terminer on March 13, 1773, in which capacity he served until he died. In 1779 he was a member of the Legislature, and during the Revolution he served on the County Committee of Safety. He was a prominent member of the Cold Spring Presbyterian Church, of which he was a ruling elder from 1754 until his decease, November 5, 1780. Captain Whilldin studied navigation, and early in life removed to Philadelphia, where he resided until his decease, April 2, 1852. He was one of the pioneers in steam navigation on the Delaware. In 1816 he built the steamer "Delaware," with which he established communication with Cape May. (A large portrait in oil of Captain Whilldin, was possessed by his granddaughter, Mrs. J. Granville Leach, has a portrait of the "Delaware" in the background.) Captain Whilldin became the owner of several steamers, which plied to different points on the Delaware, also on the Chesapeake. At one time he was a partner of the elder Commodore Vanderbilt. The pilot boat John G. Whilldin, so familiar in our waters, was named in honor of Captain Whilldin's son, Dr. John Galloway Whilldin, a promising young physician of Philadelphia, who died of consumption in early life.

On the decease of Captain Whilldin his only surviving child, Captain Wilmon Whilldin, Jr., succeeded to the business of his father, and continued the line of steamers to Cape May until the civil war, when most of his boats were employed by the government in the transportation of troops and provisions to the army. At his decease, May 23, 1866, he was extensively engaged in transportation by steam, and was interested in lines running to many parts of the country.

Colonel Leach received a classical education at the school of Rev. Mr. Julien, and under private tutors. In his eighteenth year he engaged in journalism and was recognized as a prolific and forcible writer. For a number of months just prior to the summer of 1862, he devoted much time to organizing soldiers' aid societies for the purpose of providing clothing and hospital stores for the relief of the sick and the wounded. He then enlisted in the Twenty-fifth New Jersey Volunteers, where he served as sergeant, sergeant-major and second-lieutenant, receiving his promotion at the hands of Colonel Derrom, to the sergeant-majorship, for gallant conduct at the battle of Fredericksburg.

After leaving the army he removed to Philadelphia, and began the study of law; graduating from the University of Pennsylvania, as LL.B., in March, 1866, and, being admitted to the bar in Philadelphia March 17, of that year, he immediately engaged in the practice of his profession which he pursued until his death. During the summer of 1865, at the instance of S. R. Magonagle, Esq., Colonel Leach organized and edited the "Cape May Daily Wave."

He was not conspicuous as a trial lawyer, but devoted himself to work before the Orphans' Court and to conveyancing, drawing wills, and managing estates. He had the notable record of having been the attorney for five generations of one family. He never undertook any criminal work, which was extremely distasteful to him, and in the matter of fees he was always considerate of the financial condition of his clients, charging them little, if anything, if they were poor.

He began an active participation in political affairs in early manhood, and was active in almost every political campaign after his nineteenth year, when he took the stump in support of Lincoln and Hamlin. He is said to have been the first to formally present Mr. Blaine's name for the Presidency. In the fall of 1875 he was elected to the Pennsylvania Legislature from Philadelphia, and served in the House during the session of 1876. Declining a renomination, he became a candidate for the Senate, but failed of a nomination. In 1878 he was nominated for the Legislature by the Greenback-Labor party, but declined the honor.

In April, 1887, he was appointed by Governor Beaver Commissary-General of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, with rank of colonel, on the governor's staff, which position he retained until January, 1891, and at the time of the Johnstown flood he was called on to organize the relief work in that city.

At the beginning of President Harrison's administration a strong movement was on foot to secure the appointment of Colonel Leach as Minister Resident and Consul-General to Switzerland, but before his claims were presented to the President the mission was filled by the appointment of his kinsman, Colonel Washburne, of Massachusetts. A few days later (March 18, 1889) he became Appraiser of the United States at the port of Philadelphia, the first appointment of President Harrison in that city. The office had not been sought, but was accepted, and filled for four years with marked ability, and his excellent management of the affairs of office elicited expression of high praise from the public as well as from the Treasury Department at Washington.

Colonel Leach was recognized as a literature of talent and culture, devoting much time especially to genealogy, biography and history. His fund of information relating to the origin of American families is said to be larger than that possessed by any other individual in this country. He was a careful investigator and prolific writer on historical and genealogical subjects. His regard for accuracy and his ability to furnish documentary proof of his statements were remarkable. To him Pennsylvania owes a debt of gratitude for the preservation of the memory of many noteworthy events in her history. He had the distinction of being the first to suggest that the fourteenth of June be recognized as Flag Day, sharing the honors of establishing this day with his fellow citizen, the late John Woolf Jordan, LL.D., a corresponding member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society. (Cf. memoir of John Woolf Jordan in Register vol. 77, p. xlix.)

His contributions to "Appleton's Cyclopaedia of American Biography" were more numerous than those of any other contributor, aside from its editorial staff. Among his publications is: "Memoranda Relating to the Ancestry and Family of Hon. Levi Parsons Morton," "Memorials of Reading, Howell, Yerks, Watts, Latham and Elkins Families," "Genealogy of Harry Alden Richardson," "History of the Binghurst Family; with Notes on the Clarkson, DePeyster, and Boude Families," "History of the Penrose Family of Philadelphia," including the life of the late Senator Boies Penrose, "History of the Girard National Bank of Philadelphia," "Chronicle of the Yerkes Family, with Notes on the Leach and Rutter Families," and "Some Account of Captain John Frazier and His Descendants, with Notes on the West and Checkley Families." He edited "The Journal of the Reverend Silas Conant," "Annals of the Sinnott, Rogers, Coffin, Corlies, Reeves, Bodine and Allied Families," "Some Account of the Tree Family," "John Redington of Topsfield, Massachusetts, and Some of his Descendants, with Notes on the Wales Family," "The First Provincial Council of Pennsylvania and its Members," and "Some Account of the Pawling Family of New York and Pennsylvania."

Colonel Leach was one of the founders of the Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania, and its vice-president until 1913, and then its president until his death. He was historiographer of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania for over twenty years, a founder and historian of the Pennsylvania Society of the Sons of the Revolution, chairman of its membership committee from the organization of the society in April 1888 until April 1921, a member of its Board of Managers, and its honorary president at the time of his death, a deputy governor general of the society of Mayflower Descendants, a councillor and president of the Colonial Society of Pennsylvania, a member of the Society of Colonial Wars; a founder and councillor of the Old Planters' Society of Massachusetts, a founder of the Cape May Genealogical Society, and a member of a number of other historical associations. He believed firmly in the efficacy of the hereditary-patriotic societies in arousing an interest in the study of history.

His career was one exceptional in its character of usefulness to society. Few men possess the peculiar order of ability which enabled him, in addition to the superior management of his individual interests, to so largely promote affairs of vital importance to the public. "The strongest factors in his life were ...his love for work and his love for his fellow-men. His industry was unceasing; his desire to help others unbounded." His qualities of sterling worth are the legacy of an ancestry in the line of which very many worthy names appear which have contributed to New England's fame in history. In 1676, William Manning, an ancestor, by appointment of the Colonial Government directed the erection of the first Harvard Hall. Another ancestor, John Washburn, was the first secretary of the Massachusetts Bay Company, and his ancestor Francis Cooke, was one of the "pilgrims" who came in the Mayflower and a signer of the historic "Compact". Three of his great-grandfathers, Ensign Lemuel Leach, Captain Israel Manning and Rev. Joseph Smallidge, served in the Revolutionary Army.

Colonel Leach was a member of St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal Church of Philadelphia.

Four children survive him:

"Dr. Leach received his education at public schools and under private tutors; began the study of medicine at Harvard Medical College and completed the same at Jefferson Medical College, from which he was graduated with honors in 1869. Upon his graduation he was appointed Demonstrator of Anatomy in the Philadelphia School of Anatomy. In 1869 he was commissioned first assistant surgeon of the First Regiment, Pennsylvania National Guard, and was with his command on the several occasions it was called into service to quell formidable riots in Pennsylvania. During the railroad riots at Pittsburg in 1877 he was in charge of the division hospital, and on his return home was promoted surgeon for his meritorious service with rank as major. He resigned his commission after a service of thirteen years in the Guard, and after practicing medicine in Philadelphia with marked success for twenty years he was obliged to relinquish his work there on account of impaired health. Returning to Cape May in 1887 to recuperate his health, he there, later, resumed practice. While in Philadelphia he wrote on medical subjects, his writings being published in the then current medical magazines. One article published in the American Medical Journal on "The Influence of Close Confinement in Prisons on the Production of Phthisis" was translated into many of the leading magazines of Europe. He was a member of the Pathological Society and of the Philadelphia County Medical Society. He was president of the Board of Health of Cape May City, being elected in 1892, and was elected member of the Board of Education of the same city in 1896, and vice-president of the Cape May County Medical Society in 1897".

THE FORUM, America's Magazine of Discussion. Under the editorship of Henry Goddard Leach, THE FORUM, America's monthly magazine of discussion has achieved international fame. It has convinced thousands of sceptics that the American ideal of free discussion is still being healthily upheld. Within the range of FORUM searchlights come religious questions, race problems, scientific mysteries, foreign affairs, and political controversy. Both sides and many angles of vital issues of the day!

Behind THE FORUM, and a part of its tradition, are four decades of literary and political development. Respect for the past does not curb THE FORUM'S faith in a creative future. Respect for our old conservatives does not close THE FORUM'S mind to the inspiration and profit to be derived from the young liberals in thought. To get at the truth that lurks behind every clouded issue of the day, in all fields of endeavor, is the aim of THE FORUM.

Although THE FORUM carries only one serial novel at a time, every article is, in effect, a compelling instalment of a "continued story." This continuity, this thread of sequence, is an invisible steel frame upon which THE FORUM has been built. A magazine without fear or favor, cant or creed—a magazine that deepens insight and broadens outlook, whose only bias is a slant upward. That, in short, is THE FORUM.

B729. HON. FRANK WILLING<sup>3</sup> LEACH (Rev. Joseph Smallidge,<sup>8</sup> Lemuel,<sup>7</sup> Ensign Lemuel,<sup>6</sup> Stephen,<sup>5</sup> John,<sup>4</sup> John,<sup>3</sup> Giles,<sup>2</sup> Lawrence<sup>1</sup>), of Philadelphia, Pa., was born at Cape May 26 August, 1855; educated primarily at the local schools and by private tutor. "Having read law with his brother, J. Granville Leach, he was admitted to the Philadelphia bar 31 March, 1877. He immediately began the practice of his profession in that city, where he had resided since January, 1873. Mr. Leach, at an early age, even before attaining his majority, evinced an appetite for journalism and literature. When a youth he was president of the Philadelphia Amateur Press Association and critic of the Eastern Amateur Press Association. About this time he was editor of "The Literary Gem," a monthly journal, published by the Cressent Literary Society, of which organization, made up chiefly of college students, he was president. Soon afterward he began contributing to current periodicals, his first story, a novelette, having been published in the "Waverly Magazine," when he was twenty-two years of age. Before this he had done work as a correspondent for the Philadelphia "Press" and Philadelphia "North American." For a number of years Mr. Leach has been engaged upon a biographical and genealogical work entitled "The Signers of the Declaration of Independence: Their Ancestors and Descendants."

Mr. Leach's tastes and inclinations ran to politics while he was yet a young man. In 1881 he was a delegate to the Republican State Convention, of which, also, he was the secretary. The same year he followed the political fortunes of Hon. Charles S. Wolfe, who ran as an independent candidate for State Treasurer. Mr. Leach was secretary of the Independent Republican State Committee that year, as well as in 1882, when Hon. John Stewart was the independent candidate for Governor, and he was also secretary of the convention which placed the latter in nomination, 24 May, 1882. In 1883 he was chief auditor in the office of the City Controller of Philadelphia, and the following year he was chief clerk, at the same time serving as secretary to the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund of the City. In 1885 he became the secretary of the Republican State Committee of Pennsylvania, which position he held until the summer of 1893. From 1886 to 1892, and again in 1895, he was secretary of the Republican State Committee. He was also a delegate to the State Convention of 1893. In 1888 he was secretary of the Republican National Convention, which met at Chicago, and from 1888 to 1892 he was assistant secretary of the Republican National Committee, and he conducted the campaign of that year. As a political organizer he has few equals in Pennsylvania.

Mr. Leach is a member of the Pennsylvania Society Sons of of the Revolution and of the Pennsylvania and New York Societies of Mayflower Descendants; also a member of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, the American Academy of Political and Social Science, the Numismatic and Antiquarian Society of Philadelphia, the University Archeological Association, the American Folk Lore Society, the Civil Service Reform Association of Philadelphia and the Geological Society of Pennsylvania; also of Mt. Moriah Lodge, No. 55, F. & A. M., and Damascus Council, No. 536, Jr. O. U. A. M.; also of the Markham and Penrose Clubs of Philadelphia, and the Harrisburg Club, of Harrisburg, Pa."

Miss Nellie Keith Leach, 83 West Jackson St., Wilkes-Barre, Pa., writes: "I see that you have placed 61.William,<sup>4</sup> Ebenezer,<sup>3</sup> Giles,<sup>2</sup> Lawrence,<sup>1</sup> but you have Libeus who married Peggy Starr and went to Maine as the grandson of 61.William instead of son, (as Libeus's own children claimed). Your source of information was probably the same as J. Granville Leach's, forty years ago when he quoted from Mitchell's Bridgewater, for Fanny Leach had to explain the matter to him as I am now explaining to you. Fanny only claimed to know the history of Libeus's branch. She knew the names of the others, that was all. Two Leaches marrying two Starrs and going to Maine together was sufficient reason for the families keeping together."

The record mentioned above was transcribed from the Vital Records and Mitchell's History of Bridgewater, Mass. Leach Genealogy, (1898) 42 pages, by Samuel Chessman also gives the same record. Deborah, born in 1750, daughter of 61.William,<sup>4</sup> married in 1771, 123.Nathan<sup>6</sup> Leach.
